

PEOPLE'S VIEWS ON BOND SALE

Interview With Newark Men on The Water Works Question.

THE SENTIMENT FAVORS NEW PLANT.

Many Citizens Indorse the Action of the Officials in Selling the Bonds--First Installment of Interviews.

In order to ascertain how the action of the city officials in selling the water works bonds was received by the tax-paying public of Newark, the following persons were interviewed and consented that their statements should be published:

Charles Metz (Merchant.)
My opinion is that the city should own its own water works, and ought to build a new plant, unless the old plant can be bought for what it is worth, and no more. The action of the "Big Four" in selling the bonds was all right in my opinion.

George L. Starrett (Manufacturer.)
I think the city should buy the old water works if they can be had cheap enough, but unless the Water Works company offers to sell its plant at a very low figure I would favor the building of a new plant without unnecessary delay.

J. C. Jones (Merchant.)
I favor buying the old works at a reasonable price, but if the company would not sell its plant at a reasonable price we should build a new one.

T. V. Rutledge (Merchant.)
I heartily endorse the action of the Mayor and other officials in selling the bonds, because it was in line with the vote of the people in favor of building a new plant. I consider the old plant inadequate for the present needs of the city, and the city should proceed to build a new one with no unnecessary delay.

Albert F. Crayton (Druggist.)
I am not posted on the legal points pertaining to the recent bond sale, but am glad to see the city placed in a position where it can do the best thing for the people without let or hindrance from the Water Works company.

J. R. Atcherley (Justice of the Peace.)
The sale of the bonds was all right, as the Water Works company was trying to put the city in a hole, and something had to be done if the will of the people was to be carried out.

R. C. Bigbee (Manufacturer.)
I favor buying the old water works plant if it can be had for what it is worth, but I approve the bond sale, as it will give the city a chance to pursue whatever may be the best policy without any dictation or control on the part of the Water Works company. Just think of our paying 35 cents per 1000 gallons for water when it is furnished at 8 cents per thousand gallons in Columbus and other cities.

John Eaton (Merchant.)
While I would favor purchasing the old water works at a reasonable price, I approve the bond sale because I don't want to see the city placed at the mercy of the Water Works company.

L. P. Schaas (Capitalist.)
While there are some features of the recent bond sale that I cannot approve, I believe it was the only way to get ahead of the Water Works company.

Milton Smith (Merchant.)
Let the city go ahead and build its water works without reference to the Water Works company. Of course I approve the sale of the bonds, as it was a move in harmony with the vote of the people in the spring of 1902.

D. W. Matticks (Printer.)
I fully approve the action of the city officials in selling the $200,000 bonds, as I am out and out in favor of municipal ownership; and as the Water Works company has named no price for its plant, it seems to me the very best course to take of purchasing it.

John Felix (Contractor.)
The bond sale is all right. We want new water works, and should proceed to build them without delay.

J. B. Smith (Contractor.)
A city like Newark doesn't want to stand for any nonsense. Let us build water works that are up-to-date. The umbus is only 8 cents per thousand gallons, and therefore 35 cents a thousand seems to me beyond all reason.

S. H. McCleery (Dentist.)
If the Water Works company had named a price which it wanted to sell its plant for two years ago, I think the Council should have submitted its proposition to a vote of the people; but since the company didn't do this, the City Council has been very slow about doing anything in reference to building a new plant, which was what the people voted for. As I am not a lawyer, I cannot pass on the legal points of the recent bond sale, and will therefore reserve my judgment in reference to the merits of this transaction.

James E. Jones (Merchant.)
We should have new water works

A. A. Stasel (Attorney.)
On the water works question, and from the standpoint of a taxpayer, not biased by any interest in the old water works plant, either by employment or otherwise, the sale of the $200,000 of bonds was a fortunate business move for the city. Not considering the

George McCrum (Shoemaker.)
I fully indorse the sale of the bonds, as it puts the city in such shape that it will not have to submit to the dictation of the Water Works company.

B. W. Brand (Contractor.)
The city needs water works, and ought to own its own plant. No further monkeying with the Water Works company. I am not posted on the legal points of the recent bond sale, but I believe the motives of the officials were good, and their action will certainly be beneficial to the city and the people.

Eli Hull (Capitalist.)
I endorse the action of the officials who sold the bonds fully and unqualifiedly, for the Water Works company is manifestly trying to manipulate things so they can force the city to enter into another twenty or twenty-five year contract with them on their own terms. Thirty-five cents per thousand gallons is the sum we have been paying the company for water the last 13 years, while the people of Cleveland are served for 7 and 8 cents per thousand gallons. How long will the people of Newark stand for this sort of thing? Do they want to be gouged and bled in this fashion forever and a day? We should show that we know our business well enough to build our own plant, without fooling with the Water Works company a single day or a single hour, for, in my opinion, it succeeds in blocking the building of a new plant, it will then do its best and its worst to block the sale of its plant to the city. I don't see how any men of sense can talk to the company about the sale of its plant as long as it fails to offer it for sale at a definite price. My opinion is that if we should purchase it at any price whatever, we stand a mighty good chance to be cheated. Like myself, it is too old to be of much account. In view of the rapid growth of the city and the amount of capital that has been invested and is still to be invested in its manufacturing plants, I have been simply amazed at the narrow view taken by some of our officials in reference to the measures we ought to adopt to secure a proper supply of water, and adequate protection from fire, and still more amazed at their blindness and seeming willingness to place the city at the mercy of the Newark Water Works company for all the years to come.

W. A. Lovett (Laundryman.)
The action of the "Big Five" in selling the bonds suits me exactly, because the people voted in favor of building a new plant, and the Water Works company is playing for time and trying to keep the people from securing what they voted for almost unanimously.

James C. Linn (Contractor.)
I am not posted on legal points, but I consider the bond sale a good thing for the city and the people; for my experience with the Water Works company satisfied me it will do all in its power to prevent the building of a new plant or the sale of its plant to the city. There should be no more dilly-dallying or shilly-shallying on the part of any city official.

F. M. Swartz (Merchant.)
I voted for new water works in the spring of 1902, and have seen no reason to change my mind. I suppose the mayor and solicitor knew their business in the selling of the $200,000 bonds, and that the city will suffer no injury from the transaction. That's the way I look at it.

Ed. Hickey (Merchant.)
Newark ought to have works which will give us cheap water and plenty of it. I am in for a new plant unless the Water Works company wants to sell its plant for what it is worth and no more, and unless the company names a reasonable price at once, I would favor immediate action in the building of a new plant. RIOTING

In Poland Results in the Death of Many Reservists.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.—Serious rioting is today reported in Poland. At Radom, two railway bridges were blown up and Col. Citzky was killed. At Chemstok an attempt was made to dynamite the statue of Alexander II. Riots caused by the strikers have re-occurred at Riga and Baku. In the anti-war revolt at Krasnojarski rebels derailed the military train conveying 300 reservists for mobilization at Lodz. Many reservists were killed and injured. At Pabance there were many bloody encounters between the troops and members of the mob.

TOWNS DESTROYED BY RAINSTORMS

MANY ARE KILLED

Countless Palm Groves in Persia Swept Away

So Far Three Hundred and Twenty Corpses Have Been Recovered.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—The excitement of Christmas culminated in sorrow instead of joy for six year old Louis Simmons. The child's joy, the sight of his humble, but to him gorgeous presents, his little stocking filled with sweets and popcorn, and the tiny Christmas tree, proved too much for him, and he was suddenly taken violently ill.

Feebly asking for the presents which Santa Claus brought him the little boy was discovered by his mother in one corner of the room almost unconscious. He was removed to a hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious, and his case diagnosed as heart failure.

The child's parents spent their Christmas night at the little boy's bedside.

Blizzard Coming.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A rapidly moving low barometer in Illinois and Indiana this morning gives warning of the approach of a blizzard from the northwest. Dispatches from Minnesota and Iowa tell of the arrival in parts of those states of zero weather. Temperature in the lake region is now above freezing and within six hours the weather forecaster predicts a temperature of zero or lower. Before morning the lowest temperature may be 20 degrees below. Telegraph wires are snapping in the zones already affected. The cold wave originated near Medicine Hat in the Canadian northwest and is the first real blizzard of the winter. It is sweeping across the continent in a southeasterly direction and will expend itself in the Mississippi valley and the lake regions. Twenty-eight degrees below zero is reported from Montana today.

HE HAS RESIGNED

JUDGE WING TO QUIT FEDERAL COURT FEBRUARY 1.

Former Newark Man at Cleveland Announces His Resignation Has Been Sent.

A special telegram to the Advocate Monday from Cleveland said that Federal Judge Francis J. Wing, a former Newark man, was about to resign from the bench. Another telegram Tuesday announces his resignation as follows:

Cleveland, O., Dec. 27.—Francis J. Wing, United States Judge for the Northern District of Ohio, today announced that he has sent in his resignation to take effect February 1.

BROKE HIS NECK

While Taking a Short Cut to Reach His Home—John Cole of Delaware Killed.

Delaware, O., Dec. 27.—John Cole, 35 years of age, was returning home with his wife and four little children yesterday after calling on a neighbor. Cole told his wife to walk on with the children and he would take a short cut to his home. While crossing the Big Four street bridge which was icy, he slipped and fell to the pavement, 30 feet below, and broke his neck.

Charges to Be Investigated.

New York, Dec. 27.—Serious charges are made against Bishop Ethelbert Talbot of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, which will be investigated by a church jury at Reading, Pa., on January 10. Rev. N. W. Irvine is a Pennsylvania minister, who was unfrocked because he excommunicated Mrs. Emma D. Elliott of Huntington, Pa., from the church because she was a divorcee. The affair was recognized by powerful friends of Irvine and it is said the case involves several bishops, several women and prominent men. Chancellor Budd of the Philadelphia diocese, says that the charges concern Talbot personally and not as a church officer.

NATIONAL CORPORATIONS.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The recommendation made by Commissioner of Corporations Garfield in his report was first suggested by the Standard Oil company five years ago through John D. Archbold, an official of that concern. Archbold testifying before the industrial commission September 8, 1900, said: "The next great inevitable step of progress in the direction of our commercial development lies in the direction of national or federal corporations."

CZAR PROMISES REFORMS

Nicholas' Long Expected Ukase Is Issued at St. Petersburg.

IT DISSECTS NEEDS OF THE EMPIRE.

Just and Equal Enforcement of Laws, Legal Trials, Local Self-Government, Religious Freedom and Other Reforms.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27. — Emperor Nicholas' long-expected reform ukase has been issued. The document deals, under eight heads, with practically all the subjects brought to the emperor's attention by the memorial of the congress of zemstvo presidents held here last month, and, while not specifically pledging the government to carry out the various reforms in their entirety, as demanded by the memorial, promises that each shall be referred to the council of ministers with orders to report promptly on the fullest measure of relief which can be accorded on the various subjects.

One question not touched by the ukase is that of the constitutional assembly. Neither is the Jewish religion specifically mentioned, though freedom for all creeds or sects, whether Christian or otherwise, is among the subjects which will be dealt with. The various subjects will be referred to committees for early report.

In brief, the subjects which will be referred to committees of council of ministers for early report are:

First—A just and equal enforcement of existing laws, with a view to securing the harmonious administration of all the courts.

Second—Zemstvo organization with a view to giving the widest latitude and autonomy to the various zemstvos, calling additional representatives where required and creating smaller zemstvos capable of dealing directly with the local needs of the peasants.

Third—Equality of all citizens before the law, this touching the much mooted question of peasant equality before the courts.

Fourth—Arranging a scheme of workmen's insurance for the benefit and participation of factory workers throughout the empire.

Fifth—To secure citizens against arbitrary arrest and to accord immunity from harsh action of the police, except in the cases of persons known to be conspiring to commit overt acts against the state.

Sixth—The religious freedom of all subjects of the empire without respect of creed or manner of worship.

Seventh—For rescinding unnecessary, repressive laws.

Eighth—To accord the fullest possible measure of liberty to the press and the removal as far as possible of the various restrictive laws.

Among those able to express an opinion the ukase was considered to be a document whose ultimate value depended largely upon the interpretation given by the committees as to the measure of liberty which it is possible to grant under the various heads named. Naturally it has not met the fullest wishes of the liberals, but, on the other hand, it is regarded by the reactionaries as promising entirely too much in the direction of liberal reforms. It is complained, also, that there is some ambiguity of expression in the various sections of the document, which must be left to interpretation by those to whom the various reforms are entrusted.

TO BE SUPPRESSED.

Order Against All Meetings of an Anti-Government Flavor.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27. — Instructions have been issued to the authorities throughout the empire to take steps looking to the suppression in future of all meetings of an anti-government character. Zemstvos and town boards are commanded not to go beyond the limits provided for them.

General Kuropatkin, according to an interview with Prince Dlgorouky, head of the Moscow Red Cross detachment at the front, has added his voice in favor of broader activity of the zemstvos. This may be fraught with immense significance later.

Agitation Squelched.

Kishineff, Dec. 27.—Acting Governor Block's proclamation seems to have effectively stopped the agitation started by the Bessarabians against the Jews. He threatened the severest penalties for any attempts to inflame the minds of the people or to disturb the peace.

A NEW SYSTEM

Experiments With Radio-Telegraphy Are Made Between Rome and Sardinia.

Rome, Dec. 27.—Experiments with the Arton's system of radio-telegraphy have been made between Rome and Sardinia, resulting in a successful demonstration of the inventor's claim that an electro-magnetic wave transmitted by this system can not be diverted from the point for which it is intended. King Victor Emmanuel, who witnessed the test, congratulated the inventor on his achievement.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—John Giv, 40, married, of 3135 S. 10th St., was killed and three foreign workmen were seriously injured this morning in an explosion at the furnace of the Thompson steel plant at Bradford. The men were relieving a furnace when the accumulated gas exploded. They were horribly burned and maimed.

Ugly Weather in New York.

New York, Dec. 27.—New York City had a taste of London weather today and did not like it. There was rain, fog and a lull and the men and women who had to be out in it muttered things about it that would not look well in print. This morning the drizzle of rain developed into a downpour and a dirty slush was the result.

Opium smoking has reached immense proportions in the French Mediterranean ports.

Bowser Aids Tramps

He Refuses One a Dime, and Then His Conscience Accuses Him—Sees Sad Fate For the Hobo and Plays the Good Samaritan.

(Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.)

MRS. BOWSER had been reading his evening paper for a quarter of an hour when he laid it aside with a sigh and began waiting up and down the room. Mrs. Bowser watched him for awhile, saw that he had something on his mind and finally inquired:

"Has anything happened during the day to bother you?"

"Nothing of a business nature," he answered, "but as I got off the car this evening a little thing happened that has kept me thinking. A tramp who was shivering with cold and looked as if he hadn't had a square meal for three days came up and struck me for 10 cents."

"And you gave him a quarter, of course?"

"No. I had had a row with the conductor and was mad, and I told the tramp that he ought to be arrested."

"Well?"

"Well, he slunk away, and I came along, but the look of reproach he gave me has been like an accusing voice. I am ashamed of myself. It was a heartless thing to do."

"Your conscience needn't cry out too loudly," she observed. "After cook had fed three great big tramps today along came a fourth one. She wanted him to passed out, and the cat meowed two or three times and crept back under the lounge to finish her nap and await further developments. Mr. Bowser had an idea to carry out, and fortune favored him. He reached the corner where he had left the street car and been accosted to find four men hanging about, and one of them was the very chap who had struck him for a dime. There was no mistaking his lopsided shoulder and sandy hair and whining voice.

"My man, didn't you ask me for a dime about two hours ago?" was queried of him.

"Yes, I think I did," was the reply. "And I turned you down, for which I am sorry. You must have thought me a brute?"

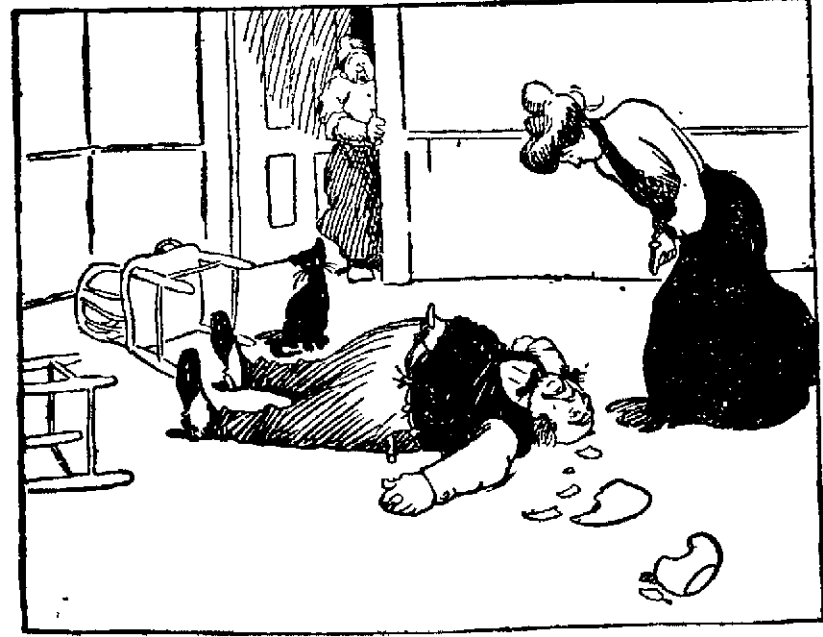

"I did," was the blunt reply, although the tramp was puzzled to know what was coming.

"Well, I'm here to show you that I'm not. Come down to the house and get a bite to eat, and we will talk of money matters and your starving wife and children later on. Who are these other men?"

"They are also poor fellows with starving wives and children."

"Then come along, boys."

Mr. Bowser appeared at his basement door with five objects of charity carry a bundle of stuff out of the back yard, but he very pointedly assured her that he was not in the labor market. He may have been the same man who gave you such a heartbroken look."

"I know that the average tramp is deserving of no sympathy, but there are cases where a good man may have to appeal to charity. Suppose the man who spoke to me had a wife and children wanting bread. What bitterness he must have felt in his heart when I so cruelly turned him down! He knew that I had money in my pocket and that a dime was the merest trifle to me, and yet I showed him that I did not care whether he starved or lived on."

"You may meet him again some day, and you can get even by handing him a double portion. Shall we have a game of cards this evening to pass away the time?"

"Certainly not. Do you take me for a man of iron? I have just been telling you that my conscience accuses me of wronging a fellow being who may be found dead on the street before morning, and you calmly turn around and ask me if we shouldn't have a game of cards. Woman, have you a heart of stone?"

"I have fed more tramps than you ever saw, and if there is one left who has not called at the basement door I am not going to worry myself about it."

"No, you wouldn't worry if half the town was starving to death, but I happen to have a different feeling. Here we are, warm, cozy and surrounded with every luxury. I have over a hundred dollars in my pocket and expect to close a deal tomorrow whereby I shall make twice as much, and yet when a starving, freezing man comes up to me and asks for the merest pittance I refuse it. It isn't right, Mrs. Bowser—it is far from right."

"If you have a hundred dollars in your pocket, why not give me a couple to buy handkerchiefs? I have only one left. Your wife ought to come before a tramp."

"There you go, twisting and citifling!" he shouted. "We were talking about a starving man—a man with a wife and children wanting for bread; a man who has been looking for work for years and years and failed to find it; a man who has probably gone off to throw himself into the river because of man's inhumanity to man, and you coolly drag handkerchiefs into the discussion. By gum, but you make me so mad that I want to kill somebody!"

"I simply said that I had only one handkerchief left to my name, and that had a hole in it," she quietly replied.

The cat came out from under the lounge with a grin on his face, and Mr. Bowser stood and looked at his wife for a long minute. Then he uttered a "humph" and started down the hall and donned his overcoat and hat.

"Are you going out?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

He "humphed" again for reply and behind him, and when the cook greeted him with a look of mingled wonder and indignation he said to her:

"You can go upstairs, and I will attend to these men myself. I presume there are some cold victuals left?"

"Is it a charity hall you are to open to such as them?" she asked.

"Never mind, my good woman, but run right along."

The cook disappeared upstairs, growling as she went, and Mr. Bowser explored the refrigerator and the pantry and set out everything he could find that was eatable. The tramps looked on in wonder, though nudging and winking at each other at intervals, and by and by they were told to sit down at the table and fill up. There was no delay on their part, and for the first five minutes Mr. Bowser's face was beaming. He felt that he had cleared his conscience in great shape. Then, addressing himself to the lopsided, sandy-haired man, he said:

"When you asked me for a dime this evening why did you not tell me that you had a starving wife and children?"

"I—I forgot!" replied the fellow, with his mouth full of food.

At that two others began to giggle and chuckle, and as the good Samaritan looked at them for an explanation one of them roared out and then said: "Boys, he's the most innocent old guy we ever struck! Think of our starving wives and children and then think of this fodder before us!"

There was laughter and pounding on the table, and one of the "patients" suggested that Mr. Bowser should get the wine ready. The scales fell from his eyes, his face reddened up with his rising temper, and he was about to make a remark when the five men suddenly burst into bilarious song. It was a song about "Maggie Murphy's Home," and Mrs. Bowser hadn't time to judge of its merits when it was interrupted.

There was a great hullabaloo in the basement. There were crashes and smashes and whoops and swear words. The cook came running downstairs, and the cat came scotching out from his retreat, and for three or four minutes confusion reigned. Then the sound of footsteps galloping away were heard, and then came silence.

The two women descended to the basement to find the table overturned and the chairs upset, and lying on the floor of the hall in the most dilapidated condition was Mr. Bowser. He had met the enemy, and he was theirs.

"He might have known it!" exclaimed the cook.

"But he has cleared his conscience," replied Mrs. Bowser, "and we will try to get him up-stairs and poultice him back to life."

Now Little Dorothy Studies In School

"I THINK I shall take Muriel out of school and teach her myself this winter," said young mother No. 1. "These must be something defective about the public school system, for she doesn't know how to read yet."

Young mother No. 2 smiled reminiscently. "I tried that with Dorothy last year," she said.

"With what success?"

"Well, we got on very well until we came to double letters. There the child balked, for she couldn't seem to learn to spell the word without repeating the letter twice. 'You must say it twice,' I said. 'Dorothy,' I insisted. 'Spell the word b-e-double l'."

"Finally I succeeded in drilling the doubling process into her head only too thoroughly, as I found one day when I wanted to show her father how she had progressed under my tuition. I pointed to a lesson which began, 'Up, up, Mary, the sun is high,' and told her to read it. She looked at it for a moment with a puzzled frown, then she began confidently:

"Who'll lick you?"

"Me fadder."

"What for?"

"For 'osin' a nickel."

"Sure you lost it around here?"

"Dead sure, and me fadder won't take no excuse."

"He won't, eh? Well, we must see what we can do about it. You appear to be a very nice boy, and I don't want you to be licked for an accident."

"Den you'll giuime de nickel, will you?" asked the lad as a grin lurked at the corners of his mouth.

The LAVENDER PAPER DOLL

By S. L. TINSLEY

Copyright, 1904, by S. L. Tinsley

The ladies of the Children's hospital were giving a paper doll social at the home of Mrs. Towley. The grounds and house had been lent to them, and the ladies had planned a supper on the lawn, with a lottery and dance in the evening. Young girls were to be dressed as paper dolls and wait upon the tables. In the evening the young men must buy their partners for the dance in the lottery. The girls made paper dresses, with paper hats to match, and practiced a stiff, doll-like walk.

"Mildred Little? Oh, she is in lavender with violets," said Henrietta Summers in answer to a question.

The woman who was interested in Mildred thanked Henrietta and walked away. She was a tall woman, with white hair and large, dark eyes—a motherly woman who wanted to help her son in his troubles, but did not know what to do. Seating herself at one of the tables, she began to watch the people.

Twice was the girl standing by her side compelled to repeat her question before Mrs. Delcoe was aware of her presence.

"May I serve you?"

Mrs. Delcoe turned hastily toward the small, demure maiden, gowned from head to foot in pale lavender paper, adorned with bunches of violets. The face was expressionless. The blue eyes stared wide open, while no doll need have been ashamed of those pink cheeks and that smooth brown hair.

Mrs. Delcoe recognized Harold's ruling truant, Mildred Little. The mother understood in a moment her son's worship. This girl's charm had already stolen upon her.

"Poor boy! I wish I could smooth out the wrinkles for him," she thought to herself. Aloud she said: "I was waiting for my son. I see him coming, so you may take our order."

The paper doll did not turn to look at the young man who came up and seated himself at her table. She waited in silence for her order.

"What would you like, Harold?"

"Your choice, mother."

At the sound of that voice the lavender doll suddenly came to life and looked directly at the speaker. When their eyes met Harold Delcoe smiled. But Mildred had regained control of herself. She was again the lavender doll.

"I see you had a lover."

The young man's face became scarlet, and he looked in an opposite direction.

Mildred served her table faithfully, yet her hand would tremble. Twice she tore her ruffled skirt and was compelled to hunt for glue, but whenever she passed Harold she was only a paper doll.

The young man would have left the fête at once, but his mother detained him. Why she did so she could not tell, yet she felt that Harold would be needed.

The supper tables had been carried away and the lanterns lighted among the trees. Henrietta Summers, the white doll, had been bought in the lottery by a tall, light-haired youth, while Lottie Edwards, the scarlet doll, waited away with a young lieutenant. Thus they were chosen one by one. The only color missing from this rainbow was lavender.

"I wonder who bought Mildred's ticket?" said Henrietta as she whirled about the room on her partner's arm. Now and then a smothered laugh was heard, accompanied by the soft rustle of tearing paper. Some unfortunate young man had entangled himself in his partner's fluttering ruffles.

"Who did you say?" repeated Henrietta as she turned toward her partner.

"Harold Delcoe," was the answer.

Harold had left the room and was walking in the deserted garden among the swinging paper lamps. Beneath a tall, spreading tree was a tent in which a fortune teller had been sitting earlier in the evening. Finding it deserted, he entered. Lying upon a bench was the red and yellow flowered robe the fortune teller had worn. Sitting down, Harold leaned his chin upon his hands and looked gloomily out of the open door at the swaying lanterns.

In the distance beneath a group of trees the young man saw a girl, her stiff gown standing out about the sien-der figure like the paper ruffle adorning a bride's bouquet. The girl turned and came slowly toward the tent. In a moment Harold had conceived an idea. Seizing the gay gypsy robe he wrapped himself in its folds. Then, extinguishing one of the candles and drawing the hood well down over his face, he waited.

For a moment the girl hesitated at the door; then, seeing the veiled figure, she came slowly into the tent.

"I thought you had gone, Gretta."

The bent figure sitting on the bench shook its hooded head and continued shuffling the cards.

"Well, you might as well read my fate. Let me see what the future has in store for the lavender doll."

The fortune teller shuffled the cards. Then Mildred told her three times. The shrinking figure bent lower, and a muffled voice began to read their meaning.

"I see you had a lover."

"Had?" Mildred laughed. "Have I lost him, then, and, tell me, was he rich or poor?"

The fate reader ignored the question. The dull, muffled voice went on reading the cards.

"He did love you dearly, but now there is—that is, there seems to be—another, for he is looking in another direction from you."

Mildred's smile had faded. She leaned forward and struck the cards from the fortune teller's hand.

"I don't believe it!" she cried angrily. "You may hint what you please, Gretta Harris, but you shan't say Harold is unfaithful. You were always jealous, you know you were. Let me tell you, my dear girl, that it was I who sent him away. I quarreled with him. I drove him away. Tonight he wanted to be friends, but I was a—"

Harold could control himself no longer. Springing to his feet, he was about to take the girl in his arms when Mildred, who had recognized him, attempted, with an angry exclamation, to push him aside. He stumbled against the table and then—

Mildred was running across the lawn, her paper dress flying from her in brilliant sparks, a halo of flames enveloping her form. Close behind her, his teeth set, the scarlet robe hugged to his breast, was Harold. Mildred had reached the edge of the artificial lake, where she hesitated for a moment. In that moment Harold, with one last, great effort, sprang to her side. Throwing the gypsy cloak about her, he gathered the girl in his arms and sprang into the water.

Ten minutes later Mildred was lying on the bank beneath the trees. When she opened her eyes a pale, wet face was bending above her.

"Harold!"

"Yes, Milly!"

The girl lifted her head and looked down at her dress. It was gone. The wet gypsy cloak was wrapped about her. A wan, little smile crept into her face.

"Poor little lavender doll! Where is she?"

"Gone forever, thank heaven! But Milly has returned."

He "Hollered" No More.

On one of his trips to the west Fred Remington, the artist, made the acquaintance of a cowboy who was called by his associates Hollering Smith. In appearance the man was typical of his kind, and Mr. Remington made several studies of him, both in repose and when in his favorite pastime of "hollering." Later, when back in his studio, the artist embodied a rather close portrait of the exuberant Smith in several drawings for a magazine, most of them showing him in a state of eruption. A year after Mr. Remington again visited Smith's neighborhood and on the afternoon of his arrival was approached by that worthy himself bearing one of the pictures torn from the magazine. Pointing to the central figure, he said:

"Say, is that me?"

"Well," replied Mr. Remington guardedly, "I got the idea from you, of course, but—"

"Oh, it's all right," broke in the man. "No offense. If it's me just say so."

"Well, yes; it's a fairly close portrait of you."

"That's what the boys at the ranch say. I look like that when I holler, do I?"

"I think you do."

"Well," said the man as he slowly returned the leaf to his pocket. "If that's the state of the case, then all I've got to say is that Hollering Smith has hollered the last holler that he'll ever holler. Hereafter when I celebrate I blow a tin horn, you bet! I don't consider that no man has a right to look like that, not around amongst white folks at least."—Saturday Evening Post.

Three Times Seven.

In the "Life and Correspondence of Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, D. D.," the author tells us that the distinguished preacher had an entire lack of humor, and he cites an amusing incident in proof thereof.

I was telling Dean Stanley that Musician Halle's cook had lately won a good round sum in a lottery with the number 23.

Halle was interested and asked her how she came to fix on so lucky a number.

"Oh, sir," said she. "I had a dream. I dreamed of number 7. I dreamed of it three times, and as three times seven makes twenty-three I chose that number, sir."

When I had concluded my story I observed a wistful expression on Arthur's countenance, as if he were ready—nay, anxious—to be amused, but could not for the life of him quite manage it. Then suddenly his face brightened, and he said, but not without a tinge of dejection:

"Ah, yes, I see. Yes, I suppose three times seven is not twenty-three."

A BLAST AT THE RICH

George Bernard Shaw Would Guillotine Wealthy Idle Classes.

ARRAIGNMENT OF LONDON SOCIETY

English Economist Advocates a Headman For All Who Cannot Earn an Income—Proposes a Commission Before Which Every Man Must Appear and Prove He is a Capable Member of Society.

George Bernard Shaw, the English socialist, play-wright, novelist, economist and borough councillor, recently delivered a speech in Sloane square, the heart of fashionable London, and savagely attacked the wealthy idle classes, says a special cable dispatch to the New York American and Journal.

In his arraignment, which has created a decided sensation, he said: "The only remedy for social evils is the crude, simple one of equality. Some people argue that it is impossible for men to be equal, because they are neither mentally nor physically equal. Such people should not be argued with. They ought to be buried. That is the way to treat people who think that mental and physical equality is the same thing as legal, political and economical equality."

"We are too squeamish about killing. There is an immense number of people living in Mayfair who ought to be guillotined. There ought to be a board like the income tax commissioners before which the rich ought to be compelled to appear and prove that they have earned their incomes. If it can be proved that anybody takes money he doesn't earn he ought to be guillotined."

"The burglar frequently obtains his loot by as proper means as the people for whom he steals obtain their wealth. Moreover, the burglar is brave and clever. He possesses qualities which have made England famous. The thing to do is to establish a minimum income and compel everybody to work for it. That minimum income should be sufficient to make a man a decent member of society. Once that was established, it would be right to regard as a criminal any man who proved he could not be a decent member of society. If anybody wanted an income above the fixed minimum there would be no harm in his saying it provided he worked therefor."

"A minimum income is the thing, and I believe it will play a great part in the economic movement of the future."

At the other end of the social scale Mayor Crooks of Poplar, London's most squalid borough, now in the depths of destitution, arraigns the tyranny of landlords. Mayor Crooks suggests a novel cure for the rapacity of landlords. He says:

"We must have a court of fair rent in east London, and the sooner it comes the better for the peace of the city. Rapacious landlords are destroying the workingmen."

"Can I sell my coat two years after its purchase for more than I paid for it? Then why should the landlord increase yearly his rent for property for which he charged a fair rent in the first instance? Rapacious landlordism can be stopped if parliament wants to stop it. These constantly increasing rents on workmen's dwellings discourage thrift and encourage fatalism."

Down With the Dust!

Doctors all over the world are recognizing dust as the conveying medium of all sorts of diseases. Not only consumption, but lots of milder diseases all the way down to "just a heavy cold," are put to the blame of the dust.

American Medicine says that dust free pavements are needed, dust free methods of cleaning streets must be devised, street sprinkling must be more thorough, and improved methods of sweeping public meeting places are urgently necessary. A sterilizing and dust free plan of sweeping theaters, churches, etc., should be enforced. Streets should frequently be flushed.

The dwellers in cities who are susceptible to dust infection cannot all remove to the country to be free from their disagreeable and dangerous idiosyncrasy; they are too many, and new means of gaining a livelihood are not readily

DR. CHADWICK

May Return as Prisoner to Ohio After All

PAPER'S DEFECT IS REMEDIED

Governor Herrick and Others are Surprised at Move Made by Albany Officials.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 27.—To correct an alleged defect in the papers carried to New York by Sheriff Barry, on which a warrant had been requested and refused for the extradition of Doctor Chadwick, Prosecutor Keeler drew up an affidavit setting forth that testimony had been adduced under oath before the grand jury tending to show that Leroy Chadwick was in this county on March 5, 1903, upon which date the alleged crime was committed. Mr. Keeler expresses the belief that an extradition warrant will now be forthcoming.

Prosecutor Keeler, when shown the dispatch from Albany stating that Sheriff Barry had been refused an extradition warrant for Dr. Chadwick, said: "The papers which Sheriff Barry carried to Albany were in regular form, and I can not understand why the warrant requested has been refused. It is probably a mere technicality, however, owing to the difference in the laws of New York and Ohio. The requisition issued by Governor Herrick explicitly states that Dr. Chadwick is a fugitive from justice in Ohio; that he has been indicted by the grand jury of this county on the charge of forging and uttering a note for $5,000,000 signed 'Andrew Carnegie,' that the crime was committed in Cuyahoga county, O., on March 5, 1903, and that the indictment is sufficient in itself for placing Dr. Chadwick on trial upon the charges named."

Governor Herrick, upon reading the Albany dispatch, said: "I am very much surprised at the action of the New York authorities in the matter. The requisition was issued only after a most complete investigation of the affidavits submitted by the officials of Cuyahoga county. I have no copy of the papers with me here, but my impression is that the date of the alleged crime was duly set forth."

Sheriff Barry of this county is at the Hoffman 'House, New York' city, where he will remain until the arrival of the steamer Pretoria, which is bringing to this country Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick of Cleveland and his daughter, Miss Mary Chadwick. Mr. Barry was not at all disconcerted over his inability to obtain the requisition papers from Governor Odell which would permit him to take Dr. Chadwick to Ohio. The sheriff said: "I am here on a sad errand, for I have known Dr. Chadwick many years, and our relations have been of the pleasantest nature. I shall do everything in my power to make his trying situation as easy as possible. I am especially solicitous that Miss Chadwick shall be spared any humiliation. I understand that some of her relatives will meet her upon the arrival of the steamer and make arrangements for her future movements."

LINGAFELTER CASE

BANKRUPTCY HEARING ON BEFORE C. M. ROGERS.

First Witness J. Hope Suter, Expert Accountant, on Stand All the Morning.

C. M. Rogers, master commissioner and referee in bankruptcy, of Columbus, was engaged Monday in hearing testimony in the case brought by Receiver A. A. Stasel of the Newark Savings Bank company against James P. Lingafelter, to declare him bankrupt.

Lingafelter is resisting the proceedings and is represented by Attorneys Smythe & Smythe of Newark and Frank Owens of Mt. Vernon.

Receiver Stasel is being represented by himself and the law firm of Flory & Flory. The receiver contends that Lingafelter mortgaged his entire property to the Homestead Building association and by this proceeding seeks to have a trustee appointed, the bank to come in for a 20 per cent share of any amount recovered from said mortgage.

The only witness examined during the morning was J. Hope Suter, expert accountant, who has been here examining the affairs of the defunct Newark Savings bank. His testimony was very complex and technical, tending to show that instead of Lingafelter having any credits on a number of accounts these accounts showed that he was overdrawn. This was true of the Idlewild Park account and the account carried as secretary of the Homestead Building association.

Attorneys for Lingafelter had demanded a jury trial, but the proceedings were referred to Mr. Rogers, as it was too complicated for a jury.

The referee, who is an appointee of United States Judge Thompson, will make his report to this court. An appeal lies to Judge Thompson if the referee's finding is not thought to be in accordance with the testimony.

The proceedings were adjourned at 12 o'clock to be resumed at 1:30.

The continuation of expert J. Hope Suter's testimony in the Lingafelter bankruptcy proceedings, was taken up at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon, and at press time he was still on the stand.

The accounts which came in for the careful scrutiny of Referee Rogers included Mr. Lingafelter's personal accounts, that as secretary of the Building Association, as receiver of the N. & G. electric road, and as manager of Idlewild Park.

The examination of the account of R. C. Lingafelter was excluded as testimony by the referee.

SUNSHINE CIRCLE

Cheered Old Folks in the Methodist Home at Granville on Christmas Day.

Among the many branches of Christmas work undertaken by the various organizations of the city, one of the most commendable was that of the Sunshine Circle of the King's Daughters, under the leadership of Miss Emma Lacey. As most of the members of this circle are members of the Methodist church their Christmas work was directed towards brightening the day in the Methodist Home for the Aged in Granville. The Home has at present 23 inmates, and for each of these an individual gift was prepared, daintily tied with ribbon, and containing a Christmas card with the name of the recipient. An effort had been made to have each gift especially suited to the tastes and needs of the one for whom it was intended, and the distribution of these remembrances on Christmas afternoon brought an infinite amount of pleasure to the givers as well as to the receivers. This branch of work is a new one to Newark circles, but one which, once entered upon, has a compensating pleasure which gives as much as that it will not soon be given up.

SUMMIT STATION.

Summit Station, O., Dec. 27.—Some person played a contemptible trick on Dickerson Brothers by removing the burrs from the front spindles of their buckster wagon at an early hour on Monday morning. The wagon was loaded with goods ready to start out on its regular trip. As Frank Straut, the driver, turned off of Harrison street onto Main street, the wheels came off, throwing him forward, but fortunately he escaped injury. Mr. Charles Dickerson offers a reward of $50 cash for the conviction of the persons who took the burrs from the wagon.

The condition of John Casidular and Mrs. W. H. Hoak remains about the same.

A New York physician says that excessive water drinking is injurious. Possibly; but it never brought any man up before the mayor the next morning.

The Chicago News wickedly asserts that the reason Mrs. Chadwick was not able to "work" John D. Rockefeller is because President Harper discovered him first.

The Japs continue to take hilltop positions at Port Arthur, but their remains quite a number more to be taken before the garrison can be forced to capitulate.

Governor Herrick has announced that prize-fighting will not be tolerated in Ohio. Of course not. The statutes forbid it and it is the governor's business to enforce the statutes.

Two Hungarians, Anton Polak and Jozsef Virag, have invented a telegraphic device which transmits 40,000 words a minute and delivers the "copy" written out at the receiving end of the line.

If the report as to the nature of the Russian defense for the Dogger bank shooting, which will be presented to the international commission, is true it would seem that the Czar's representatives have grave doubts as to the contention of their naval officers that they were attacked by the Japanese torpedo boats. For while the first point to be made is to this effect, it is said that if the evidence which is produced should not be satisfactory on this head, then it is proposed to show that even if the Russians were not attacked they were justified in believing that they were. Finally, if this argument fails to convince the commission it is intended to urge that the firing was only an accident. The Russians profess to have abundant evidence to prove their first position. If so then it is difficult to see why they should provide for maintaining the second and third ones just cited. But perhaps the forecast of their intentions may not be an accurate one. If it is it will certainly not tend to breed general confidence in their case.

Federation in Central America.

Some of the politicians and party leaders of Central America are reported to be making determined efforts to secure a union of the five republics of that region in an offensive and defensive alliance against the whole world, with the particular purpose of resisting imagined encroachments upon their rights and territory by the United States. Aggression by this country is not at the present time so threatening as to demand the formation of such an alliance, but a union of the states between Mexico and the isthmus would undoubtedly insure to the benefit both of those states themselves and of their larger neighbors. It would give a much greater assurance of permanent peace among them than now exists. The federation movement received a considerable impetus from the recent convention at Port Corinto, at which Guatemala, Nicaragua, Salvador and Honduras were represented. Costa Rica sent no delegates to this meeting, but her eminent men express themselves in hearty sympathy with the federationists.

This country is not alone in having a serious immigration problem with which to contend. England has discovered that within a comparatively short time she has convicted over 13,000 aliens of crimes at a cost to her taxpayers of over $800,000. Furthermore, the influx of aliens is raising the rents to a figure which is beyond the resources of her own poor toilers. Many of the aliens are paupers and become a burden upon the communities where they settle.

The Spade in Modern Warfare.

The deadlock of the contending armies in Manchuria immediately after the battle of Sha River recalls the campaigns of the civil war. Kuropatkin fortified in the tracks where the battle left him, and so did his enemy. The Russian fortifications are known to be formidable, and doubtless those constructed by the Japanese are equally strong. Early in the civil war the spade was at a discount, but in 1864 both the northern and the southern armies fell to making rifle pits and breastworks as soon as a deadlock occurred in the fighting.

The Confederate General Lee, in his retrograde movement from the Wilderness battlefield to James river, fortified the lines taken up successively at Spottsylvania, North Anna river and Cold Harbor. Grant forged his way up to the Confederate outposts and also fortified his lines. In the end he gave up trying to burst through the enemy's strong barriers and moved forward by the flank. The same methods characterized the Confederate retrograde movement from Dalton to Atlanta, Ga., led by General Johnston. Johnston met every advance of his opponent, Sherman, with strong fortifications. Sherman fortified the ground taken as he pushed his army step by step against the enemy's reserve lines. Prolonged contests always end in a brute struggle for the mastery, and finally the rifle pit, the breastwork, the parapet, must take the place of human bodies to stop the bullets and shells. In this respect modern warfare has but the same old answer to the old problem—the spade, the spade.

Sending Christmas Presents by Mail.

The approach of the Christmas season brings anything but pleasant anticipations to the railway mail clerks who handle the thousands of presents sent through the mails. Their labors are greatly increased by the imperfect manner in which a large percentage of the packages are put up, in many cases being so poorly tied that they come apart long before they reach their destination.

Speaking of it the other day, a mail clerk said if people would take the trouble to put the article in a box it would save a great deal of unnecessary worry and labor at a time when the clerks are badly overworked, and the present would reach the person for whom it is intended in much better shape than it usually does. A shoe or a corset box or a breakfast food carton makes a package of convenient size for handling in the mails. Glass, china or fragile articles of any description should be packed in wooden boxes. Packages should be securely tied and plainly marked with the address of the sender in the upper left hand corner. Postage should be fully prepaid, 1 cent an ounce for merchandise and 1 cent for two ounces on printed matter, including books, photographs, pictures, etc.

The Doctrine of Self Help.

For a number of years past this land has been flooded with a class of literature urging the readers to pin their faith during sickness, discouragement and poverty upon something besides religion and the tried and approved rules for seeking health, contentment and progress. The promoters of this literature and the methods advocated therein assume that in the average man and woman of today the will is in a state of decadence, a strange assumption with regard to a people where personal power is supposed to be strongly cultivated. The prevalence of this new teaching, for new it is in its application at least, is evidence that many worthy people are distressed about their ways of handling themselves, of getting on in the world, and seek help from without.

In default of outside help through religious faith or from natural moral guides the weak soul, which means simply the undeveloped and undisciplined person, conscious of imperfections, may resort to auto hypnotism or self discipline, self control and self help with full confidence that success will follow persistent effort. Self made people are not the product of resolutions within, but of battles without. Any trial, any prolonged effort to do something worth while, strengthens the will power. Every one has a reserve of subconscious power which is never appreciated until it is put to a severe test. The second struggle is won through with amazing ease, and with that little capital of confidence the subject can continue the effort and make sure progress.

The average parent or teacher is a hypnotist without laying claim to special powers. Any exercise of personal moral power to buoy up and influence others is hypnotism, and the best hypnotists are those natural guides and teachers who are in daily contact with their subjects and alive to their weak points. What every individual needs is to be led until able to walk alone and then left to paddle his or her own canoe. Life's battles are not to be shunned, but tackled bravely. The soul must fight it out alone with faith and patience. There is no short cut to health or happiness or wealth, and no "ism," whatever its name or however plausible its argument, can be trusted to work out salvation. Our helper, our strength, is within.

THE "NEW MONROE DOCTRINE" INDEED.

(New York World.)

The New York Tribune defends the President and Mr. Root from the charge that they have enunciated a "new Monroe doctrine." The gist of the President's utterance, it says, "as lucidly and authoritatively enlarged upon by ex-Secretary Root," is this:

That the American states near us on the south are to be protected in their independence sovereignty as long as they conduct themselves aright, that if any of them grossly misbehave they must be corrected, and that if ever correction is to be administered it must be by or with the consent of the United States.

The Tribune adds that "the disorderly states must mend their ways or submit to discipline." This is the substance of Mr. Roosevelt's famous letter to the Cuban dinner, which, with characteristic frankness and audacity he incorporated in his message to Congress. To show what an utter perversion of the real Monroe doctrine this is, it is only necessary again to cite the original declaration of President Monroe.

The American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. * * * We should consider any attempt on the part of any of those powers to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as contrary to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and on just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States.

Where in this declaration can be found even the color of warrant for the impudent assumption that the states to the south of us are to be protected in their independence only "as long as they conduct themselves aright." Where in the true Monroe doctrine can Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Root point to a word that claims for the United States the right to "discipline" these independent governments if they do not "conduct themselves" in a manner that we consider "decent?"

Even Mr. Olney, whose assertion that "today the United States is practically sovereign on this continent" was quoted approvingly by Mr. Root, said in the same dispatch that "it (the Monroe doctrine) does not establish any general protectorate by the United States over other American states."

The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt has "faked" a Monroe doctrine to suit his bellicose and domineering disposition, and upon this false construction he has based his demand for a big navy and his assumption of an overlordship in this hemisphere. He claims for our government a responsibility for and power over the independent states to the south of us that he neither asserts nor attempts to exercise over the states of our own Union. Could there be anything more absurdly arrogant than for President Roosevelt to say to the Central and South American republics, "You must mend your ways or submit to discipline." "You must pay your debts and behave decently or correction will be administered by the United States," when he permits rioting and anarchy to prevail without rebuke in Colorado, is cognizant of scores of unpunished mob-law lynchings and burnings in our own country and knows that several states of the Union have repudiated their debts without recourse?

Before the President enters upon his self-appointed duty as "international policeman," let him look to his own beat! Before he commits the United States definitely to the role of debt-collector for foreign creditors in alien territory, why not consider his impotence toward repudiators at home?

The "new Monroe doctrine" is not a Monroe doctrine at all, but a Roosevelt doctrine. The purport, the spirit, the words of the Monroe doctrine all mean non-interference in the affairs of our southern neighbors by European powers or by ourselves. The meaning of the Roosevelt doctrine is an assumption of responsibility that does not exist as a justification for the "Big Stick," the costly navy, perpetuated high taxes and an imitation imperialism in our peaceful republic. Neither Mr. Root's brilliant sophistry nor the Tribune's ever-loyal defense of the President can hide or alter these palpable facts.

Let us have new water works, as that is what the people voted for. The action of the officials in selling the $300,000 bonds was all right.

"Becky" Bell (Merchant). The only proper thing to do is to build new water works according to the vote of the people. I don't believe in buying the old works at any price whatever, and therefore I fully endorse the action of the "Big Five" in selling the $300,000 bonds as they did.

Hiram Brooks.

Let us have new water works, as that is what the people voted for. The action of the Mayor and other officials in selling the bonds meets my full and hearty approval.

Homer H. Sparks (Attorney). It is my opinion that the conduct of the city officials in the present water works controversy has been justified by the state of affairs and by the pressing needs of the city. It was necessary that this question be brought to an end one way or the other at once, and the plan followed by the city officials as it seems to me was directed towards this end and was method of that sale, it is of the highest business interest of the city to be in a position to build a water system. I am in favor of buying the old plant, but we cannot buy it at its fair worth until we are wholly independent. It is no doubt the purpose of the Water company to delay the sale of these bonds until a time when the city cannot build a new plant before the contract with this company expires. Then we are at its mercy. The sinking fund trustees can invest this $300,000 until we need it, and if we finally issue bonds to buy the old plant, the sinking fund trustees can buy such bonds with this money. The "Big Five" are a little nervy, but they are all right, just the same.

L. F. Tenney (Merchant). I have not come to a final conclusion, and think the action of the "Big Five" was rather hasty.

James M. Morgan (Merchant). I was at first in favor of buying the old plant, but since I have found out what it cost, I believe the city should pay no attention to the Water Works company, but go ahead and construct its own plant.

J. V. Hillard (Attorney). I want the $300,000 bond sale to stand, and I hope it will.

W. H. Mazzy (Merchant). I am glad that the city officials have done something in the interest of the public instead of the Water Works company, and have got the ball started in the right direction. It reminds me of President Roosevelt and the Panama canal.

Henry Sachs (Merchant). If the Water Works company wants to sell its plant to the city, let it name the price, and then we will know where we stand. It is simply a commercial question, and if it wants to sell let it say what it wants for the plant. That is the way to do business.

Michael Sachs (Merchant). The Water Works company ought to do like other people who have property to sell: Name their price, and if their price is not satisfactory let the city construct a new plant on the hills along the South River, where the water is always soft and pure, and can be used for all purposes.

James Linahan (Merchant). If a good deal could be made with the Water Works company, I would favor buying their plant, but it is up to the company to say at what price they will sell. That's my idea of the proper way to do business.

Amos Brice.

I think the action of the officials in selling the $300,000 bonds was the only way under all the circumstances that they could carry out the will of the people, as expressed in favor of building a new plant, since the Water Works company is doing its best to prevent this. In my opinion the old plant is almost worn out and is not what a city like Newark ought to own.

T. O. Donovan (Capitalist). My candid opinion is that the recent bond sale has saved $150,000 to the city of Newark. The question was decided by the people at the election in the spring of 1902, and the Water Works company has had plenty of time to name the price for which it will sell its plant, if they want to sell it. Let the vote of the people stand.

W. L. Whitcamp (Merchant). The people voted for a new water works and that is what is wanted. The action of the officials in selling the $300,000 bonds was all right.

"Becky" Bell (Merchant). The only proper thing to do is to build new water works according to the vote of the people. I don't believe in buying the old works at any price whatever, and therefore I fully endorse the action of the "Big Five" in selling the $300,000 bonds as they did.

Hiram Brooks.

Let us have new water works, as that is what the people voted for. The action of the Mayor and other officials in selling the bonds meets my full and hearty approval.

Homer H. Sparks (Attorney). It is my opinion that the conduct of the city officials in the present water works controversy has been justified by the state of affairs and by the pressing needs of the city. It was necessary that this question be brought to an end one way or the other at once, and the plan followed by the city officials as it seems to me was directed towards this end and was the best plan according to my opinion.

W. D. Fulton (Attorney). I think that the Mayor and the committee in the sale of the water works bonds did exactly right. Each one ought to be voted a gold medal by the people of Newark. No man can estimate what that move will save the city of Newark. I am interested in this matter as a taxpayer and feel that all the citizens of Newark owe a debt of gratitude to its officers.

J. R. Fitzgibbon (Attorney). I think the city officials who conducted the bond sale were justified in all that they did, and I am confident that when the citizens understand all the facts in this case that they will commend them for what they did. If this sale had not been conducted as it was, there would have been in my opinion, various legal questions made, none of which would possess any merit, but would be made solely for the purpose of delay and obstruction. Take, for instance, the injunction suit. If the Court had overruled the demurrer, holding the petition good, all that would have been necessary on the part of a tax payer would have been to appeal the case to the Circuit Court, give his bond and the case would stand as it existed in the Common Pleas court before the order of the Court overruling the demurrer. That is, with a temporary injunction against the issuance of the bonds. The Circuit Court would not meet until next April. The case might be continued at that time, and then it would not meet again until in the fall. In this way it can be seen how a matter when it once gets into the courts can be delayed and put off. I also believe that it would be to the interests of the city if the old water works plant could be purchased at a fair price. By that I mean at a price from $100,000 to $150,000. It would save tearing up the streets, competition in business and vexatious delays. I find however from talks that I have had with various citizens that I am about $50,000 in excess of what most of them are in favor of paying for the old water works system.

FRAY AT A DANCE

Four Men Are Dead and Two Wounded—Danced With Another's Sweetheart.

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 27.—As a result of a quarrel over dancing with another's sweetheart without asking his permission, four men are dead following a general shooting affray and two are seriously injured at Grangers, Logan county. The victims are: John and Marvin Hart, aged 23 and 26 respectively; Martin Johnson and Lawrence Bascom. William Riley and Henry Turbeville were injured, the latter probably fatally.

The tragedy occurred at a dance in the church at that place. Martin Johnson, without observing the usual custom, asked Lucy Adkins, whom Turbeville had taken, to dance with him, but said nothing to her escort. As the music ceased Turbeville called Martin Johnson's friends. A general shooting followed. The women ran screaming from the dance hall by a rear door, while half the men present drew their weapons and took sides with the two factions, which lined up against each other outside the building. The pistol battle was brought to an end by Martin Johnson's friends, who were in the minority, fleeing for their lives. No arrests were made.

GOVERNOR WRIGHT

In a Cablegram from Manila Confirms the Reported Uprising of Natives in Samar.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Secretary Taft received a cable message from Governor Wright at Manila in response to his inquiry in regard to the recent uprising of the Pulajanes, Dolores, Samar. Governor Wright says: "I regret to say that General Corbin's report of attack on and loss of detachments of scouts at Oras and Dolores is correct. Pulajanes have of late left west and north sides of Samar and become active on the east coast, which is practically without harbor and very difficult of access during prevalence of the existing monsoon. Orders were given some time since to strengthen all detachments on the east coast, but unfortunately this was delayed by wreck and loss of coast guard boat carrying 100 or more of the constabulary. The men were saved. All east coast stations have been heavily reinforced, and we are still sending men in by my direction."

Dodge Falls Ill.

New York, Dec. 27.—Charles F. Dodge, who returned from Texas last week in charge of United States Marshal Hanson to answer to a charge of perjury, suffered a collapse in his room at the Broadway Central hotel and a physician was speedily summoned. Later a second physician was called in consultation. Assistant District Attorney Garvan called on Dodge and was later asked concerning his condition. He replied: "Mr. Dodge is a very sick man and under the constant care of a physician. He is suffering from sore throat, malaria and general undermining of the system."

COW ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Carried by Eccentric Owner on Journey About the Country—Old Story Recalled.

Colorado Springs, Col., Dec. 27.—The sale of the old Curr ranch, on the eastern slope of Cheyenne mountain, which has just been negotiated by Henry LeB. Willis & Co. of this city, recalls the visit here of its owner, Theodore B. Starr, ten years ago and the many unique incidents in connection with it.

Theodore B. Starr is a New York Jeweler. A decade ago he came to Colorado Springs with his invalid wife who subsequently died in California. His extravagant expenditures while here have not been forgotten nor his extraordinary devotion to his wife, which made many of his actions seem eccentric. His arrival on a special train and his departure for the coast seven months later in a palatial special, which not only carried his family, but the cow that had provided milk for his invalid wife, were features of his sojourn in the west.

It was told of him that he valued the cow beyond money consideration, the same as he valued an old sofa which he carried all over the world with him because of the household associations attached to it.

Powder House Explodes.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 27.—A portion of the Arcadia Powder company's works at Waverly, 10 miles from this city, blew up, and the concussion shook the country and broke windows for 20 miles around. No one was killed or seriously injured, although about 20 of the employees who had just left the powder works when the explosion took place were thrown to the ground and stunned. The plant is situated a mile outside of Waverly, yet every window in the town was broken and many people on the streets were cut by the shower of broken glass. The property loss at the Arcadia works is estimated at $25,000.

Believes Girl Her Daughter.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Mrs. C. R. Kemter of this city believes that the girl found murdered on Cutler hill, near Colorado Springs, Colo., is her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Bouton. She last heard of her daughter in October, when she was informed that she would leave Colorado Springs and go to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and reach Syracuse on Christmas. The description of the murdered woman fits Mrs. Bouton, the identity being exact. Members of the family declare that if the dead woman proves to Mrs. Bouton, they know the man involved.

Winter's Worst Storm.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 27.—A blizzard has been general over the greater part of Indian Territory, Kansas, Nebraska and western Iowa. A terrific wind is blowing and the thermometer is near the zero mark here. A thousand telephones are out of working order in Omaha, where a heavy sleet storm impeded communication. It is the worst storm of the winter. Stockmen assert that the cold wave will not affect cattle, as they are in excellent condition and able to stand much cold.

American Attaches Arrive.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.—Lieutenant Colonel Walter Schuyler and Captain Carl Reichmann, the United States military attaches with General Kuropatkin's army, have arrived here, making the journey from Mukden to St. Petersburg in 24 days. After completing their formal calls, they will leave immediately for Washington.

Train Derailed.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 27.—The north coast limited, which left here for the east, was derailed while running out of the yards onto the main line track across the Tacoma drawbridge trestle works. The tender of the engine and the mail and baggage cars were thrown from the tracks. No one was injured.

Postmaster at Baltimore.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The president has appointed W. Hall Harris postmaster at Baltimore. Mr. Harris succeeds S. Davis Warfield. It was not known except to a few that he was a candidate. Mr. Harris' name was laid before the president by Charles J. Bonaparte.

A Family Reunion.

One of those occasions which serve to bind parents and children together in the bonds of love and unity was the family dinner given by Mr. Wilson Smith of Franklin township on Christmas day.

Early in the day his children and grand children began to arrive until all had gathered at the old homestead. At noon a bountiful dinner helped to refresh the inner man. The afternoon was spent in amusements of various kinds and music helped to enliven the occasion. The afternoon hours passed away so swiftly and all too soon the guests began to depart, feeling that father and grand father had surely shown the spirit of him whose birth the day commemorates.

The Key That Unlocks the Door to Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund well-fed, but thin, spare men who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to cleanse and invigorate his stomach and regulate his liver and bowels. When this is done there is no reason why the average man should not live to old age. For sale by all druggists.

VOLLEY FIRED

Into Congregation During Celebration. Pastor Shot and He Will Die of Wound.

Hanceville, Ala., Dec. 27.—While a negro congregation was holding a celebration in a church at Stout's Mountain, a mining camp near here, a volley of shots was fired into the congregation from the outside. Rev. Clay, the pastor, was shot through the hips and will die. Ike Woodward was shot in the shoulder, and Bob Jackson is probably fatally wounded. The shooting caused a panic, and the negroes scrambled out of the building and ran in every direction. Later the dead body of Henry Jett, a white miner, was found lying near the church with a revolver lying near by. It is supposed he was a member of the shooting party and was accidentally killed by one of his companions. John Jett, a brother of the dead man, and Ted Blackwell, both white miners, have been arrested in connection with the affair.

Who Was Charged With Murder of His Wife and Child Prevented Virginia Lynching.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 27.—James Linkous, a Radford (Va.) painter, was taken to Roanoke to prevent lynching at the hands of infuriated citizens, after the coroner's jury had returned a verdict that he murdered his wife and adopted son and burned his home to remove evidence of the crime. It is charged that Linkous beat the brains of his victims out with a blunt instrument and then fired the building. When the building was burning briskly he gave the alarm. The town's volunteer fire department turned out. Linkous's actions were suspicious and the horse was kept on Mrs. Linkous's sleeping room. Her form was not badly burned. It is asserted that both had been killed before the house was fired.

The corn shredder, thin ice and rabbit hunting may be depended upon at this season of the year to help keep down the surplus population.

Mrs. Sarah Gordon, aged about 61, died at her home near Redington Saturday morning, after an illness of several weeks. She was afflicted with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The funeral was held Monday at Chestnut Ridge church. Her pastor, Rev. Mr. C. H. Sowers delivered the funeral address to a large number of friends and relatives. Interment was made at that place. She has been a member of the M. E. church for a number of years at Redington.

A Christmas program was rendered at the Christian Union church at Oakthorpe Saturday evening. Trough-out the country Christmas was a time of feasting. SCOTT'S EMULSION makes pale, thin children fat and chubby. Overcomes wasting tendencies and brings back rosy cheeks and bright eyes.

It's surprising how quickly children respond to Scott's Emulsion. It contains just the element of nourishment their little bodies need. They thrive on it.

Even a few drops in the baby's bottle have a noticeable effect for good. Nothing better than Scott's Emulsion for growing children.

Why do substitutes for Scott's Emulsion cost less? Because they're worth less. With one you wait in vain for the benefits you had looked for. In Scott's Emulsion you get them. It never disappoints. That's worth the few cents difference in cost.

We'll send you a sample free upon request. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

DAN SULLY'S NEW PLAY.

One of the best of the coming attractions at the Auditorium is Daniel Sully's new play "Our Pastor," in which the popular star is appearing with the greatest success in his career, and which will be seen in Newark in the near future. It is a romantic drama of unusual strength, full of exciting scenes and thrilling situations, brimful of comedy, original in theme and treatment and novel in construction. "Our Pastor" must not be confounded with "The Parish Priest," which Mr. Sully produced some years ago, as the only resemblance between the two lies in the fact that a priest is the leading character in each. The new play is the greatest Sully as ever presented and in it he is scoring the most brilliant triumph of his career.

A COLD WAVE

Is Headed This Way—Now Below Zero in Western States—Weather Bulletin.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Reports to the weather bureau show that the first decidedly cold wave of the season is spreading rapidly southeastward over the east slope of the Rocky mountains. The temperature is below zero in the Dakotas, Montana and western Wyoming, with a minimum reading of 30 degrees below at Havre, Mont. The southwest storm will move northeastward during the next 36 hours, and cause general rains throughout Kentucky, Tennessee, the South Atlantic states, and snow or rain in the upper Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic states. The weather is clearing today in the lower Mississippi valley and the east gulf states. It will be decidedly colder in the lower Ohio valley, Tennessee and the gulf states, and the cold wave will doubtless spread into the upper Ohio valley and the South Atlantic states Tuesday night or Wednesday.

Christmas at St. Paul.

A happy and busy Christmas was the rule at St. Paul's Lutheran church. In the morning the Bible school was slipped with the general congregation at 9:30 o'clock, pastor Schindler preaching an appropriate sermon from the text, "He took a little child and set him in the midst of them."

In the evening the schools gave a splendid Festival program. It was the most elaborate of the many good programs these schools always give. Though hampered because of the crowded condition of the church and the sudden sickness of several of the scholars whose important parts could not be taken, the general program was well given and the very large audience with the school thoroughly enjoyed it. The principal features were the Romans, faithful to Caesar, threw women consoling each other with prophecy soon to be fulfilled, Magi, wise in Chaldean lore and started to Bethlehem, Shepherds watching their flocks to whom the angel announced the Christ-birth, all leading up to the manger scene well represented in which a number of pretty children, representing an angel chorus, added effectiveness.

The music was of a high order and was sung with the splendid spirit characteristic of the school. The infant child of Edwin Corbin represented the Christ. As a service calculated to commemorate the birth of Christ and to teach the great truths of his holy day, it was eminently a success.

Nurse Not Voluble.

"I don't like to say such long prayers," said the little girl the other evening. "I want to say nice short ones like nurse says."

"What kind does nurse say?" inquired her mother.

"Oh, she just says, 'Oh Lord, why do I have to get up?'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

VOICE RETURNED

After Many Years—Mute Girl at Indianapolis Now Talks Better Than Ever.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—Emma Rogers, daughter of Frank Rogers, 741 South Illinois street, who had been unable to speak for 12 years, recovered the use of her voice late yesterday afternoon under peculiar conditions. The father centered her for allowing a certain young man to pay attention to her, and she became hysterical.

Her own amazement was no greater than that of the members of the family when she suddenly spoke in clear tones. "I want my mamma." The father and sisters gathered close to her, unable, at first, to believe that the girl had recovered her power of speech.

The girl was still hysterical, and one of her sisters hastened for a physician, who applied remedies to quiet her nerves. An hour afterward the girl, on recovering from the stupor, was chattering merrily with her father and sisters, who were overjoyed at her recovery.

Her voice, according to her sisters, is stronger and clearer than it was when she suddenly lost it as the result of a severe attack of la grippe. Her father had spent a small fortune with specialists, who were unable to relieve her.

The Norwegian authorities have conceived an original method of curing drunkards of their vice. The "patient" is placed under lock and key and his nourishment consists in great part of bread soaked in port wine. The first day the drunkard eats his food with pleasure, and even the second day he enjoys it. On the third day he finds that it is always about the same thing, and on the fourth day he becomes impatient, and at the end of eight days he receives the wine with horror.

MISS JOHNSON

After an Invalidism of Three Years, Died Early Tuesday Morning—Buried Thursday.

Miss Georgia Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Johnson, died at her home on North Fifth street at 3 40 o'clock Tuesday morning, after an invalidism of three years. The deceased young woman has lived in Newark practically all her life. Her illness was a malady of the bones, which is very rare, the bones becoming softened throughout her entire body.

Miss Johnson was a member of the First Presbyterian church and was a conscientious Christian woman.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. L. S. Boyce at the late home on Thursday afternoon.

A father, mother and one brother, James Johnson of Zanesville, survive.

Miss Johnson's illness at times caused her excruciating physical agony, while at others she rested comparatively in comfort, but at all stages of her illness the manner in which she bore her terrible affliction, was an inspiration to the entire neighborhood, where her Christian fortitude and resignation was an example to all. Even though racked with pain, for months being unable to move, never a murmur escaped her lips, and she was ever ready to acquiesce in the will of God, which she had always endeavored to interpret for the guidance of her life.

Miss Johnson had a wide circle of acquaintances, having been a clerk in the Newark postoffice several years ago, a teacher in the First Presbyterian Sunday school, organist in the church and prominently identified with the other activities of the church organization.

The funeral services will be strictly private at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, but friends who wish to view the remains may do so by calling at the home before that time.

MICHAEL FRIEDNOUR.

Following are resolution on the death of Mr. Friednour:

Whereas, Almighty God the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, has chosen to remove from our midst our brother, Michael Friednour, and as we believe the Almighty doeth all things for the best, be it therefore

Resolved, That the sudden death and removal of such a life from among us, leaves a vacancy and casts a shadow that will be deeply realized by all the members and friends of this organization.

Resolved, That we, the members of B. and M. I. U. No. 4, of Newark, desire to express to the widow and family of our late brother our heartfelt sympathy in this, the hour of their bereavement, feeling that their loss is our brother's eternal gain, and that He is too wise to err and too good to be unkind, will comfort them in this their hour of sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed on the minutes, a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that our charter be draped for 30 days in his memory.

A LARGE AUDIENCE

Enjoyed Cantata "Santa Claus' Mistake," Monday Night—To Be Repeated Thursday.

The cantata, "Santa Claus' Mistake or a Bundle of Sticks," was given on Monday night under the direction of the Bible school of the Central Church of Christ, before an audience that filled the large auditorium of the church.

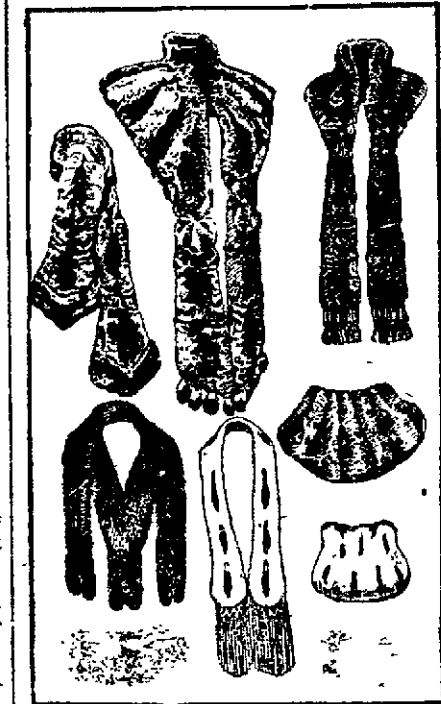

Owing to the inclement weather many of the children and friends living at a distance could not attend, and at the suggestion of different persons it was decided to repeat the cantata on Thursday night of this week. No admission fee will be charged, but a free silver offering will be asked for during the evening, and whatever is realized above expenses will be used to help the worthy poor of the city. The doors will be open at 7 o'clock and the program will begin at 7:30. Those having choice of seats should come early. Everybody invited.

COLD WEATHER GARMENTS.

Some New Hats and the Latest Things in Fur.

Each November, when the New York horse show is over, we know for a certainty what we are to wear, for not until the leaders of style in this country have worn a gown, hat or wrap to this show does it become a fashion. The dressmakers and modistes of all kinds wait in fear and trembling for the verdict. Then the newspapers show the wonderful costumes, and the smaller fry hasten to imitate them more or less closely.

It must be understood that the styles shown in this place are those for handsome afternoon wear and evening attire, and the hats, wraps and gowns worn do not constitute by any means all the things that even a wealthy woman requires. But the shapes are the most important things. Are sleeves to be the hideous leg o' muttons or short or long and bishop as far as the fundamental shape is concerned? Are skirts to be habit backed or Victorian, and will hats be the abominable things of the last year? Those are the questions which have the deepest interest for the ordinary woman who wants to look as well as she can on a very small sum.

Naturally there were many shapes of hats to be seen, but they can be summed up in a short paragraph so far as form goes. The prime favorite is the turban shape. Now, this word turban covers a wide degree of latitude, for some turbans are close and with the brim almost perpendicular, while others have the brim turned but slightly, which gives the hat a wider shape. Some have the brim bent so that the hat becomes a very tricorne. One of this kind which was much admired at the show was of black velvet, the brim being laid in folds of velvet. The crown was outlined by a band of royal sable, with a tall plume of floating marabout, white as snow and looking much like it. Perhaps I should have called this an egret, but it is rather too soft and floating to be justly named egret, which means a standing plume. Many of the turbans are entirely of fur of some becoming kind, with such trimming as seems fitting to the milliner. One has a bunch of red velvet roses, and another has beautiful and artistic thistles in natural colors. The soft green of the leaves and stems makes an artistic contrast with the dark fur of the hat, which is in cavalier shape, sharply turned up at the left side. There are many very handsome hats of beaver in many colors and shapes, but the shepherdess form with sweeping plumes seems to be best liked. The turban shapes are the ofttest seen and are more generally becoming. Besides, they may be made to match a gown or a fur neck piece.

And these fur pieces—how shall I give an adequate description of them without being a better scholar in all that pertains to natural history than I am? For it would seem that everything that ever walked on four feet has contributed to the list of furs used—Persian, seal, sable, ermine, mink, skunk, astrakhan, beaver, marten and last, but by no means least, chinchilla. This latter fur is sought for by the smart set, but it is by no means a durable fur. It is very soft and pretty.

There are long coats of seal and of all the other furs, but the great find just now is to have a unique neck piece. There are very many more varieties of these than I can find place for, but the prevailing mode will be for four-in-hand ties of the close piled furs, edged in some cases by fur of another color or kind. Some have chenille fringes and others have rows of balls covered with the fur. The Victoria is a favorite shape. These Victorias have long stole fronts and are fastened near the center with some suitable ornament. One very odd shape has a flat scarf hanging down to the waist on both sides, while two more start from the neck and meet, partly crossing at the waist line. This leaves the front open in a very dressy way. Few of the fur garments of this season have high storm collars. Some have none at all.

Long coats for automobiling are by natural selection mentioned here, although none was seen at the show. They are made of thick cloth lined with fur or some of the less expensive varieties, such as red fox and raccoon. Some have the whole outside of the coat of fur, with a storm collar of unreasonable dimensions. The short coats for street are made in several different styles, but the best are those where there is a medium storm collar, with revers (some have only one revers) of the same or a contrasting fur. Some are snug fitting, and others have a reefer front; others, again, are in blouse shapes. OLIVE HARPER.

COPPER KILLS BACILLI.

Discovery Which May Prevent Typhoid and Cholera Epidemics.

Man would seem to have at last discovered an effective weapon against typhoid fever, Asiatic cholera and similar merciless scourges which invade our intestinal and digestive organs through polluted water. It is yet too soon to declare positively that we shall exterminate these dread diseases, but we have good reason to believe that we shall be able to drive them out of cities and towns and camps and prisons and wherever men are living herded close together. The weapon is not of steel or iron, but copper, the most convenient form being the common compound of copper and sulphur known as blue vitriol, copper sulphate. Every school laboratory contains some beautiful blue crystals of copper sulphate. Every schoolboy for generations has dabbled with these blue crystals or has watched his teacher use them for ordinary class room experiments. And yet who would have imagined that a pinch of these crystals dissolved in the water tank in the attic or in the cistern or well would kill any typhoid germs that might be lurking there; that its use would insure healthful drinking water in a crowded military camp; that it would exterminate malaria and yellow fever carrying mosquitoes in stagnant pools and swamps by destroying the vegetable organisms on which the mosquito larvae feed; that it would in a few hours make the water of an evil smelling and foul looking city reservoir, containing billions of gallons of water, clean and sweet, and that the amount of copper that accomplishes all this is so small that while it kills the bacteria in the water it does not make the drinking water poisonous or injurious to the human system?

It has been known for a long time that copper destroys bacteria, but the metal has not been much used heretofore for the purpose, because scientists have generally believed that the dose required to kill the bacteria must be very concentrated—so concentrated, in fact, that it would poison the water or substance containing the bacteria and make the cure worse than the evil. A specialist of the United States government, Dr. George T. Moore, has now come forward and announced, with the authority of the government behind him, that he has discovered how to get the good effect of copper without any dangerous result; that he has a way of using copper so diluted that it cannot hurt a baby and yet so active that it will destroy virulent cholera and typhoid bacilli in four or five hours.

Preparations For National Bowling Congress In Milwaukee --- Setback For Jockey Sloane. Small Men Versus Large In Football---Wrestling.

Bowling legislators are becoming active with the advent of winter. The men in Milwaukee who are engineering the forthcoming national tournament next February are getting down to hard work.

The Milwaukee promoters are in a better position to bring off a successful tournament than any of their predecessors. All the experience of the former holders is at their command, while they possess a far better hall in which to run the event than any of the other cities, not even excepting Chicago and Indianapolis.

In the past criticism has been caused from various reasons, among them the extreme coldness of the alley room, as erred in giving a judgment favorable to Tod Sloane, the American jockey, against the Jockey club. The opinion says the club is the exclusive judge of discipline within its precincts.

The court of appeals at Paris recently began hearing the appeal of the French Jockey club against the decision of a lower court favorable to Tod Sloane in the suit for $40,000 damages which the jockey brought against the club for being wained off the turf in connection with Rose de Mai's winning the Prix de Diane at the Chantilly races in May, 1902.

Beauchamp, the American jockey who was deprived of a license in Berlin in September by the stewards of the Jockey club, has been notified that he will be allowed to ride in 1903.

Future Football Players.

What build of men will be in demand on the college gridiron next fall? This season the giants have been in demand, and every large, husky individual attending college has been trotted out to try for the varsity.

The call for 220 pounders has been growing gradually during the past few years. If the style of game now played is continued a football contest will develop into a game where the biggest men in college indulge in a titanic struggle, sluggish and slow.

There will be no fast work—nothing pretty or spectacular about the game. It will be a case of so many pounds of beef pitted against so many more pounds of beef.

Little Men Have Had Their Day.

The little man's day in football seems to be drawing to a close, yet in the past it has been the little men who have played the liveliest game and in-at Cleveland; cramped quarters, as at Chicago, poor schedule making, poor bookkeeping, inaccessibility of the alleys and other complaints. All of this will be obviated this season unless present calculations go widely astray. In addition, Milwaukee will have the advantage of being able to keep in touch with the Chicago men, who have been through the mill in former tournaments and whose experience will be available for the Milwaukee men.

Cleveland's idea of securing a big entry from the state in which the tournament is to be held is being followed out by the Cream City also, Charley scribed their names the deepest in the football hall of fame.

There have, of course, been great giants in the history of the game whose names will always be remembered. Heffelfinger and Brown of Yale are noted examples, but think of the little men who have won fame and glory on the gridiron.

Were any of the Poes gigantic? Lamar, whose matchless runs will never be forgotten, was a little man. Ames was a big man, but no giant.

A Few Exceptions.

Stagg, King, Frank Hinkley, Boyle, Brooke, Lewis, Wrenn, Dean, Lee, Church, Donnelly, Daly, Chadwick, De Saulles, were all of the little men's class.

Eckersall, the brilliant quarterback of the University of Chicago, eleven, is a small man. There is no doubt that he ranks first among the quarterbacks of 1904.

Once in awhile some giant like the great and only Heffelfinger, Glass or Perry Hale does such great work that he stamps himself a marvelous football player, but for every giant that wins renown ten smaller men make good.

This year the work of Reynolds and Stevenson of Pennsylvania, Rockwell of Yale and Starr of Harvard are examples of what small men can do.

Piening and Egeberg.

H H Egeberg, the great Danish wrestling champion, has a strong claim to the Greco-Roman wrestling championship of the world. His recent defeat of John Piening, the Brooklyn champion, advanced Egeberg's claim considerably.

Egeberg however, will not be champion of the world until he defeats Charles Leonhardt of Newark, N. J.

Egeberg is a wonderfully strong wrestler, and he is anxious to meet all the other heavyweights of this country.

Egeberg Very Active.

Egeberg stands six feet one inch and weighs, when in condition, about 200 pounds. Despite his weight he is wonderfully active.

Once in action Egeberg wastes little time in feinting. He closes in on his opponent at the first opportunity and, securing a body hold, delights in hurling him into the air and then dashing him to the mat. He found the American a pretty slippery proposition, but Egeberg says he has beaten men as good as Piening while in Europe. In speaking of his experiences in Europe Egeberg says that it was necessary to defeat fifteen men in twelve hours to win the championship of Denmark.

JOHN PIENING, THE GREAT BROOKLYN WRESTLER, DEFEATED BY EGBERG.

Moll having made several trips already through Wisconsin for the purpose of securing entries. He will follow this up with a trip through the east and should succeed in getting a record breaking number of entries. While the Chicago entry is still an unknown quantity, it is unlikely that less than sixty teams, the number of Chicago's leagues, will compete, while a hundred might not be an overestimate.

"Fallen Among Thieves," a sensational melodrama, is in Boston.

Dore Davidson's engagement with the Woodland company has closed.

Ivan the Terrible is the twenty-fifth character which Richard Mansfield has created.

Harris and Sidman are in the production of "Twirly Twirly," with Ross and Fenton.

Pimero has found "Letty" to be his greatest success since completing "The Gay Lord Ques."

Julia Opp has a chance to exercise her charm in wearing fashionable gowns in "Letty."

Miss Crossman's "brogue" is so charming in Sweet Kitty Belanus that one is tempted to wish that all the world were Irish.

For the roles in which he is to be seen during his tour Richard Mansfield carries twenty-seven trunks of gorgeous costumes.

Otis Skinner made a flying trip to Paris last summer especially to consult with Jules Richepin, the author of "The Harvester."

SHORT STORIES.

The steamship Argy brought from Honolulu to San Francisco recently the first shipment of island frogs—100 dozen.

A man at Castleville, Mo., has made a big fight to prevent the authorities from laying a brick sidewalk in front of his house. He says that it will cause his shoes to wear out too quickly.

It has been found that Chinatown guides in San Francisco get up opium and other dens of vice of their own in Chinatown and employ Chinese to occupy them so that there may be show places for tourists.

Guy Lowell will design the classic peristyle and H H Kitson the battle monument which will celebrate Iowa's part in the taking of Vicksburg during the civil war. It will stand on a commanding ridge near Vicksburg.

An expedition to the headwaters of the upper Amazon in a yacht of high class and much capacity has just been started. It may reasonably be expected that ere long the world's knowledge of the upper waters of the mighty South American river will be vastly enlarged.

BRITISH BRIEFS.

All British public men have popular nicknames. The recent arrival of Dr. Jameson at Cape Town was announced as the "return of Sunny Jim."

Laving pictures—clever and finished representations of groups taken from Dresden and Sevres china—are very popular at one of the London music halls.

There is a boat in a canal north of London which is entirely "manned" by women. The last English census reported several hundred women doing the work of seamen.

The bank clerks of England are planning the formation of a union in order to secure an increase of wages, which virtually condemn the clerks to "cellulose, lodgings and sixpenny lunches" for a life.

A short time ago the steamship Isle of Cadiz arrived in No. 8 dock, Salford, England, with a cargo of 1,600 tons of currants from the land of Pallas-Athene, and every packet on board was for the co-operative wholesale societies of England.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Messaline silk and dotted crepe de chine combined make excellent ball gowns.

Buckles are on every kind of leather belt, usually in front and back. The back buckle is high and the front rather low.

The newest belt is of tan kid, having four leaf shaped pieces of black kid inlaid into the center of the back and finished with a gold button.

Light materials, such as voile crepe and etamine, will be as popular as ever this season and are particularly well adapted to the modeling of the skirt composed of a couple of flounces, the upper one reaching above the knees.

Many fashionable women are wearing brown boots with brown gowns. Others are wearing tan shoes with navy blue gowns and tan leather belts to match the shoes and tan colored hats and tan colored strappings upon the gowns—anything to bring the boots into harmony with the dress—Brooklyn Eagle.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

Up to date 318 statues of William I of Germany have been erected in German towns.

Berlin has instituted a series of municipal clocks, seventeen in number, which give the official time in every part of the town. This is only another example of the socialism on municipal lines which is practiced throughout the fatherland.

During the celebration of a recent harvest festival at Blankenburg, Germany, a peasant woman made a speech of thanks for abundant crops closing it by proposing three cheers for God. For this she was brought before the court and fined 10 marks.

The difficulty of distinguishing the current of German nickel pieces from silver coins of the same size has induced the chamber of commerce of Gladbach to address a petition to the government asking that nickel coins shall be provided with a hole in the center.

With the Boxers.

Tommy Ryan's Ambition For Middleweight Championship. Chicago Troubles Settled.

Tommy Ryan is determined to work himself into the middleweight championship title if he possibly can do so.

He brushes aside for the present the claims of Bob Fitzsimmons and of Kid McCoy. His desire is to defeat "Philadelphus Jack" O'Brien decisively and then, if McCoy or Fitzsimmons pressure him too closely, he will make a match with either.

Ryan is one of the closest boxers of the day. He is a brilliant ring general and a heavy hitter. So far as cleverness is concerned he ranks at the top with Jim Corbett and Kid McCoy.

Corbett, McCoy and Ryan are unquestionably the most scientific boxers America or any other country has ever produced.

Chicago fight promoters have finally concluded a bitter war against each other. The men who are at the head of the clubs have evidently learned one lesson, and that is that if the game is to prosper there must be no quarrels over dates, and the "anvil chorus" must be hushed or at least rehearsed only in private.

When Sheriff Barrett issued his warning to the managers he told the men interested in the Blue Island and Harlem Athletic clubs that their method of settling personal questions was a bit too noisy for a peaceable community. The hint was strong and to the point, and the parties interested complied to it in a hurry. The declaration of peace followed, and it is doubtful if any previous war of such proportions has ever been subdued as quickly.

Fight fans generally both in Chicago and other points will hope that now that the promoters have had a good lesson they will heed it in the future. Without blaming any one in particular, it is not saying too much to state that the game has suffered by these quarrels in the past. That it is not on a firmer basis in Chicago now is due to the trouble between the men who ought to have done their best to keep things running smoothly.

It is to the interest of all concerned that arrangements be made to keep such quarrels from happening. When the game is overcrowded the followers upon whom they depend for support get tired of it. This follows because the pugilists become too numerous, and first class men cannot be obtained for all the shows at once. A poor boxer is a poor thing. He makes poor shows, poor crowds, poor clubs and poor managers.

Promoters must recognize this, but in previous seasons they have failed to show that they do. Chicago can be made into one of the best fight towns in the world if good men are pitted against each other and the shows are not too numerous. The trouble begins when the small fry try to break in at the top and get a piece of the money that is believed to be floating around. As a matter of fact these men are mis taken in thinking that fortunes are made by the fighters and promoters and almost any one in the game will tell them that it is usually a losing venture.

Frankie Neil the bantam champion, who was defeated in London by Jem Bowker has hard things to say about England and the methods of boxing and maintains that he was robbed. He contends that no one can win over there unless he knocks out his opponent.

Neil would like to meet Bowker in this country and would be willing to put up a big side bet as an inducement.

Reports from England are to the effect that Bowker may accommodate the Chicago men as he intends to come over here at the end of the year, ready to meet all comers in his class.

AN UNDERGROUND CITY.

Prediction of a New York Subway Official.

Subterranean dancing pavilions and places of amusement may follow underground rapid transit in New York, and there is even now talk of underground stores and rattiskellers along the avenues bordering the subway, says the New York Globe.

According to one of the subway officials, who has a speculative turn of mind, a veritable underground city may come next to a city which would have its advantages especially in the summer. This underground idea, according to this expert, came to him after seeing the ride continuously in the Paris tube simply to keep cool during the summer months. Every one knows, said he, the fascination of floating idly in a boat through some artificial cave but touring for nine or ten miles through a shrieking tube would have its excitement as well as its attractions.

They are trying to take out the subway advertisements—be added. But the day may come when American ingenuity will plan one continuous round of sightseeing to tickle the fancy of subway passengers.

Subdued light, continued the expert or almost darkened air heightens the imagination moonlight under some megalithic conditions being almost dangerous. This is in favor of subterranean pleasures, and dance halls having grottoes or caves alongside, which, being cool in summer, would attract thousands. Amusement managers would vie with each other in having the weirdest and most fantastic places, for the American people it is well known love to be fooled and have an inclination toward strange sights. Artists could duplicate sections of the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, and boating parties for a nickel could ride on the mysterious river Styx, in which the fish have no eyes.

Values on underground real estate, however, have not been fixed, and prices for sections beneath the earth's surface are not being quoted, but property owners may yet have a new source of revenue. Chicago is handling much of its freight in small underground railway cars, and the day may come when heavy trucks will disappear entirely from New York streets.

GUARD FOR CZAR'S HEIR.

How a Giant Cossack Watches Over the Infant Czarowitz.

The infant czarowitz Alexis is as carefully guarded from kidnappers and assassins as the czar himself, says a special cable dispatch from St. Petersburg to the New York American and Journal. Whenever his English nurse takes the infant into the gardens of the palace of Tsarsko Selo she is followed by a gigantic Cossack named Zimin, whose office it is to protect the child from kidnapping by revolutionaries.

Once a day the czarina accompanies the nurse or walks behind conveying with Zimin, whose fierce features are said not to relax even under the imperial smile.

Zimin is intensely suspicious and a few days ago stopped M Zinovoff, a high official of the ministry for internal affairs, and asked him what he meant by coming so near the nurse.

The baby is usually completely hidden from view by a mass of white furs. Until a few days ago nine out of ten palace officials had never seen his face.

Tsarsko Selo, like Peterhof, has been turned upside down for the benefit of the heir. The notoriously defective heating arrangements of the palace are being remedied. A new nursery has been set apart for the children and an old reception room turned into a playroom, in which are lockers containing hundreds of toys.

UTOPIAN FACTORY TOWN.

Garden City, England, Is Planned to Be an Idle Spot.

An industrial town unlike any other in the world is about to rise near London, says the New York World. It is to be called Garden City, because every house will be surrounded by a garden. Ebenezer Howard is the projector of this Utopia, and he has after many years induced rich philanthropists to form a stock company and furnish the large capital necessary to begin work.

There is to be one family to each house flat and two family houses being absolutely barred, the total population is not to exceed 30,000 and a maximum of one sixth of the town area is to be given up to buildings. These are to be factories, but every window of these is to be a window garden. Next is to be supplied direct from the surrounding farms each family is to grow its own vegetables on its own land, cows are to be pastured in the town and each house is to be hygienic and pretty. Garden City is to be governed by a board of managers and is to be managed strictly as a business enterprise. There is nothing socialistic about it and the residents will have little to say about the government of the place.

The projectors expect to scatter such garden cities all over England.

The Wounded In Naval Battles.

Dr. Suzuki, surgeon in chief of the Japanese navy, declares that his experience in the present war proves that the wounded should be laid on the firing not the non-firing side of the vessels for it is not the side exposed to the enemy which is the most dangerous but the other—the fragments of bursting shells dispersing in a radiating manner.

Some Comical Sayings

By the Little Ones

LITTLE Maigle Mamma the lady upstairs is a widow, isn't she?

Mamma—Yes, that is, she's a grass widow.

Little Maigle—Why, mamma, did her husband die of hay fever?

"Johnny" said the teacher "can you tell me what a coincidence is?"

"Yes, mamma" answered Johnny. "We've got one at our house."

"Well, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"Twins," was the prompt reply.

"What shall I get you for your birthday," asked a father of his five-year-old daughter, who was suffering from toothache.

"I'd like some teeth like mamma's, so I can take 'em out when they ache," replied the observing miss.

"So you have a stepmother?" said the lady to a little girl of six.

"Yes, mamma" was the reply.

"Well, you have my sympathy, dear," continued the lady.

"Oh I don't need it," rejoined the small maid. "Give it to papa."

"Papa, did you ever see an artificial whale?"

"There is no such thing, my son."

"Then where does artificial whale-bone come from?"—Chicago News.

Her Embarrassing Dilemma.

"Why did you let George go away believing that was you he saw yesterday afternoon with Harry Rattlepate?" You know he is madly jealous."

"Yes, I know that, my dear, but you see I could hardly do anything else."

"Couldn't do anything else?" Why did you not simply tell him the truth—that you were with me at the matinee when he thought he saw you?"

"But don't you understand, dear? George told me he knew it was I because he recognized my new dress across the street though he didn't see my face. Now if I denied it was I it would be equivalent to confessing that I didn't have an exclusive dress pattern this fall wouldn't it?"

Which of course, explained everything to the perfect satisfaction of the other one—New Orleans Times Democrat.

Professionals.

The two sportsmen looked at each other in the parlor of the village inn and at last entered into a conversation in regard to the experiences of the day.

"And you say you have caught sixty trout in less than two hours," said one at last. "Well I'm glad to have met you. I'm a professional myself."

"Fisherman" inquired the other man.

"No—er—narrator" was the reply—London Tit Bits.

"No," insisted Miss. Crenne. "Sometimes they are kept so busy finding fault that they never have any leisure."—Washington Star.

INNOCENT MAN FREE

New Yorker Sentenced for Murder, Spends Christmas at Home After Years in Prison.

New York, Dec. 27.—Declared innocent after serving ten years of a life sentence in Sing Sing and released on the governor's pardon just in time to hurry home for Christmas, Adolph Herschkopf spent the happiest Christmas of his life with his family.

Surrounded by his friends and with his faithful wife, to whose ten years of unceasing effort he owes his freedom, at his side, Herschkopf, after family reunion at his brother-in-law's house, made a triumphant tour of the east side, visiting old friends who had not seen him since his imprisonment.

"I am both glad and sorry," he said, "glad to have my liberty, but sorry that the best years of my life are gone. But the best thing of all is to know that my innocence has at last been established."

Herschkopf was convicted largely on the alleged confessions of certain men, and the evidence they gave against him has since been shown to be false.

LIGHT LAKE DEPTHS

World's Fair in Oregon Will Contain a Large Body of Illuminated Water. Unique Feature.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 27.—Among the novelties of the electrical illumination scheme designed for the Lewis & Clark exposition is the submarine lighting of Guild's lake. This is the largest body of water ever inclosed in any exposition grounds, being over 200 acres in extent. The arrangements being carried out will transform the lake into a blaze. The lights will be 50 candle power each, and inclosed in an and water tight receptacles. Spectators will be able to see all kinds of fish swimming about in the shallow water.

This submarine illumination will also give the effect of dancing flames of fire at a distance in the night. In the center of the lake an immense geyser will play, intermingled with various lights, and a Columbia river fish wheel will be in operation.

Completing the vista of Columbia court on the island in the lake will be the grand court and gardens in front of the government building, surrounded with 300-foot towers, which, with their outlines trimmed with thousands of lights, can be seen as far as the Cascades range of mountains, 75 miles distant.

In conjunction with this plan the Mazamas, a mountain climbing club of this city, are arranging for the illumination of Mount Hood, the highest peak in Oregon, by signal fires at intervals during June and July. The mountain is easily discernible from the ground.

BOY'S NIGHTMARE

LASTED ALL NIGHT AND DOCTOR WAS CALLED.

Imagined He Was About to be Killed by Russians and Japs and Became Frantic.

Thornville, O., Dec. 27.—Carl Gordon, aged 15 years, was the victim of a severe attack of nightmare Friday night. His groans brought his father and mother to his bedside to awaken him but all to no purpose. Several neighbors were called in, when he became frantic and imagined that he was about to undergo a tortuous death in the hands of the Japs and Russians. Dr. U. K. Essington was called and prescribed. The doctor required the assistance of two strong persons during the magic spell, which lasted all through the night. He has never been known to possess such remarkable strength.

PROMOTER SUICIDES

Following the Failure of a Corporation of Which he Was an Officer in New York.

New York, Dec. 27.—Made desperate by the failure of the American Fuel corporation, of which he was the secretary, George S. Evans, a broker and promoter, ended his life in a hotel in Jersey City by shooting himself in the head. When he committed the act his wife was sitting before a window in the residence of her father in Bloomfield, N. J., waiting for her husband, and when a messenger brought the announcement of the tragedy she collapsed and is now in a serious condition. Before shooting himself Evans wrote a note asking that his wife be notified by a friend whom he named.

Chinese Demand Spurned.

Shanghai, Dec. 27.—The Russian consul has made no reply to the demand of the taoist for the surrender of the sailor belonging to the Russian cruiser Askold who, on Dec. 15, murdered a Chinaman as the result of a dispute of payment for the hire of a jinricksha. The sailor is still on board the cruiser, where he was sent by the consul, and where it was understood he would be tried by courtmartial. The taoist has applied to the foreign board at Peking for further instructions. The Ningpo community is becoming restive.

Defended Her Honor.

Batson, Tex., Dec. 27.—W. R. Constan, an engineer, employed by an oil company here, was shot and killed by Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, wife of another engineer. The shooting occurred on the doorstep of the Nichols residence. Constan, it is alleged, gained access to the house and insulted Mrs. Nichols, whereupon he was ejected. He returned and Mrs. Nichols fired at him, killing him instantly. Mrs. Nichols was arrested, but released on a small bond to appear before the grand jury.

Before the Grand Jury.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 27.—Senator Mitchell and possibly Congressman Herman will have their much-desired opportunity of going before the United States grand jury and explaining away the charges that may have been made against them this afternoon. Assistant United States District Attorney Heney, who is conducting the investigation, stated that Senator Mitchell would be allowed to appear before that body, but he did not know whether Congressman Herman would or not.

Want Regicides Punished.

Belgrade, Dec. 27.—The newspaper Oppositai came out with an editorial vigorously demanding that the regicides of King Alexander and Queen Draga be executed, as were the murderers of Prince Michael in 1868. The paper was promptly confiscated. Its editor writes articles from the safe vantage point of Zeemlin, Hungary.

Fairbanks Takes Degrees.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks arrived here from Washington. On his arrival here he went to the Claypool hotel, his family not being at home. He will remain here until the reconvening of congress. The vice president-elect today took the first and second degrees in the Oriental lodge of Masons.

STOLEN HENS

Were Supplied the Guests of the Hotel Which Was Raided, According to the Police.

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 27.—Justice Fitzpatrick held for the grand jury Mrs. Luna Swartz, who conducted the Stone House, a summer hotel on the National road at Im Grove, on the charge of receiving stolen chickens. She was unable to furnish $2,000 bond and was committed to jail.

The henhouses of many residents of Elm Grove, a Wheeling suburb, have been depleted of their choice poultry for months. It was suspected that the hotel table was supplied from the henhouses, and it was raided by the police a few days ago, the fowls found there being identified.

C. P. Dickerson, Mrs. Swartz's son-in-law, escaped. John Smith and Sam Austin, directly charged with the thefts, were committed to jail in default of $500 bond.

BAYONET FIGHT

Feature Of Attack Made on Port Arthur

JAPS LOSE GUNS AND MEN

Mobilization of Russian Reserves Precipitates Riot in Polish Towns—Japs Surprised.

London, Dec. 27.—A dispatch from Chefoo says: A messenger from Port Arthur describes a Japanese attack the evening of Dec. 22, with a light column of 5,000 and many machine guns, on the northern defenses. They dashed along the railroad, carried trench after trench, and succeeded in reaching the water course beneath Payusan mountain, whence the Russian artillery worked terrible execution. A fierce bayonet fight occurred at midnight. A strong Russian force advancing eastward of Payusan mountain threatened the retreat of the Japanese, who, after a desperate struggle, retired to the north, leaving several machine guns, 300 rifles and 80 prisoners. It is estimated that they lost 600 killed. The Japanese halted near the cemetery, and finding that both their flanks had carried all the works forming the outlying range of the main forts, they entrenched on small hills near Elise mountain under a severe enfilading fire, which caused them heavy losses.

A Tokyo correspondent cables as follows: "On Dec. 19 the Japanese signalled the Russian hospital ships protecting the destroyers in the roadstead of Port Arthur to change their berth, and the Russians requested a respite of six hours, which meant giving the destroyers the benefit of darkness. The sequel is not known. It is reported that recently positions have been captured behind Liaotia which have cut off the Russian supply bases from main force."

Rioting in Poland.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.—While the new mobilization is proceeding quietly in most places, disorders are reported to have occurred in Poland. The most serious disturbance was at Razon, where one colonel was killed and a gendarme wounded. There has also been considerable rioting at Bakhout, where 6,000 conscripts pillaged a few houses and fruit stalls. No one, however, was killed. The emperor has his personal aides-de-camp at all of the mobilization centers to see that everything possible is done for the reservists and conscripts and to obtain immediate reports at first hand of any disturbances.

Valron's Testimony.

Paris, Dec. 27.—The Echo de Paris claims to have information that it was the request of the British government that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky sent back Lieutenant Valron of the transport Kamchatka to testify before the international commission on the North sea affair concerning the wireless messages which aroused the suspicions of the commander of the Russian Baltic squadron and led to opening fire on the Gamecock fleet.

Jap Force Surprised.

Mukden, Dec. 27.—Volunteers who crossed the Shakhe river surprised a force of the enemy, killing about 100 and taking 15 prisoners. The Russian losses were trifling.

New York, Dec. 27.—William Hammel of Shiloh, N. J., 80 years old, went skating yesterday and had a good time with the rest of the "boys." A hurry call was sent in to Bowers & Criss Bros., and their ambulance was soon on the scene with Dr. J. A. Mitchell, and the injured man was taken to his home corner Western avenue and Tenth street. The doctor does not consider Mr. Horn's injuries dangerous.

STARVING BEARS

San Francisco, Dec. 27.—Captain Thwing of the steamer Harold Dollar, which has returned from the eastern coast of Siberia, tells of an invasion of the cities and villages on the east coast of the Kamchatkan peninsula by hundreds of starving Siberian bears. The ferocious animals, driven from the mountains by hunger, made their way to the inhabited regions of the coast, and for days kept the natives in a state of semi-siege. In Us-lakamchatka, a small town near the city of Petropavlovsk, 150 of the brutes were shot in a single day.
